Illinois REALTORS® believe in the National Association of REALTORS® (NAR) Code of Ethics. Complying with the Code is a core requirement to be a REALTOR®.

The Code of Ethics and Standards of Practice of the National Association of REALTORS® establishes objective, enforceable ethical standards governing the professional conduct of REALTORS®. This list of suggested professional courtesies is meant to compliment the Code of Ethics, may not be all-inclusive, and may be supplemented by local custom and practice.

These Professional courtesies are intended to be used by REALTORS® on a voluntary basis, and cannot form the basis for a professional standards complaint.

For more resources visit www.IllinoisRealtors.org.
Follow the “Golden Rule”—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Respond promptly to inquiries and requests for information.

Schedule appointments and showings as far in advance as possible.

Communicate promptly if you are delayed or must cancel an appointment or showing. If a prospective buyer decides not to view an occupied home, promptly communicate the situation to the listing broker or the occupant.

When entering a property, ensure that unexpected situations, such as pets, are handled appropriately.

Never criticize property in the presence of the occupant.

When showing an occupied home, always ring the doorbell or knock — and announce yourself loudly before entering. Knock and announce yourself loudly before entering any closed rooms.

Present a professional appearance.

If occupants are home during showings, ask their permission before using the bathroom.

Encourage the clients of other brokers to direct questions to their agent or representative.

Communicate clearly; ensure specialized language and real estate terminology is understood.

Be aware of and respect cultural differences. Show courtesy and respect to everyone.

Be aware of — and meet — all deadlines.

Promise only what you can deliver — and keep your promises.

Do not tell people what you think — tell them what you know.

When showing a property, be responsible for your clients/customers and keep the group together.

Make reasonable and timely accommodations to provide access to listed properties.

Make reasonable and timely requests to access listed properties.

Leave the property as you found it (lights, heating, cooling, drapes, etc.). If you think something is amiss (e.g., vandalism) contact the listing broker immediately.

Be considerate of the seller’s property. Do not allow anyone to eat, drink, smoke, dispose of trash, use bathing or sleeping facilities or bring pets. When instructed or appropriate, remove footwear when entering property.

Obtain permission before photographing, videographing, or streaming the interiors or exteriors of properties, or allowing others to do so.

These practices are simple; many are common sense.

These practices are critical to maintaining an environment of respect for all those involved in a real estate transaction.

Follow the “Golden Rule”—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Respond promptly to inquiries and requests for information.

Schedule appointments and showings as far in advance as possible.

Communicate promptly if you are delayed or must cancel an appointment or showing. If a prospective buyer decides not to view an occupied home, promptly communicate the situation to the listing broker or the occupant.

When entering a property, ensure that unexpected situations, such as pets, are handled appropriately.

Never criticize property in the presence of the occupant.

When showing an occupied home, always ring the doorbell or knock — and announce yourself loudly before entering. Knock and announce yourself loudly before entering any closed rooms.

Present a professional appearance.

If occupants are home during showings, ask their permission before using the bathroom.

Encourage the clients of other brokers to direct questions to their agent or representative.

Communicate clearly; ensure specialized language and real estate terminology is understood.

Be aware of and respect cultural differences. Show courtesy and respect to everyone.

Be aware of — and meet — all deadlines.

Promise only what you can deliver — and keep your promises.

Do not tell people what you think — tell them what you know.

When showing a property, be responsible for your clients/customers and keep the group together.

Make reasonable and timely accommodations to provide access to listed properties.

Make reasonable and timely requests to access listed properties.

Leave the property as you found it (lights, heating, cooling, drapes, etc.). If you think something is amiss (e.g., vandalism) contact the listing broker immediately.

Be considerate of the seller’s property. Do not allow anyone to eat, drink, smoke, dispose of trash, use bathing or sleeping facilities or bring pets. When instructed or appropriate, remove footwear when entering property.

Obtain permission before photographing, videographing, or streaming the interiors or exteriors of properties, or allowing others to do so.

These practices are simple; many are common sense.

These practices are critical to maintaining an environment of respect for all those involved in a real estate transaction.

Follow the “Golden Rule”—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Respond promptly to inquiries and requests for information.

Schedule appointments and showings as far in advance as possible.

Communicate promptly if you are delayed or must cancel an appointment or showing. If a prospective buyer decides not to view an occupied home, promptly communicate the situation to the listing broker or the occupant.

When entering a property, ensure that unexpected situations, such as pets, are handled appropriately.

Never criticize property in the presence of the occupant.

When showing an occupied home, always ring the doorbell or knock — and announce yourself loudly before entering. Knock and announce yourself loudly before entering any closed rooms.

Present a professional appearance.

If occupants are home during showings, ask their permission before using the bathroom.

Encourage the clients of other brokers to direct questions to their agent or representative.

Communicate clearly; ensure specialized language and real estate terminology is understood.

Be aware of and respect cultural differences. Show courtesy and respect to everyone.

Be aware of — and meet — all deadlines.

Promise only what you can deliver — and keep your promises.

Do not tell people what you think — tell them what you know.

When showing a property, be responsible for your clients/customers and keep the group together.

Make reasonable and timely accommodations to provide access to listed properties.

Make reasonable and timely requests to access listed properties.

Leave the property as you found it (lights, heating, cooling, drapes, etc.). If you think something is amiss (e.g., vandalism) contact the listing broker immediately.

Be considerate of the seller’s property. Do not allow anyone to eat, drink, smoke, dispose of trash, use bathing or sleeping facilities or bring pets. When instructed or appropriate, remove footwear when entering property.

Obtain permission before photographing, videographing, or streaming the interiors or exteriors of properties, or allowing others to do so.

These practices are simple; many are common sense.

These practices are critical to maintaining an environment of respect for all those involved in a real estate transaction.

Follow the “Golden Rule”—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Respond promptly to inquiries and requests for information.

Schedule appointments and showings as far in advance as possible.

Communicate promptly if you are delayed or must cancel an appointment or showing. If a prospective buyer decides not to view an occupied home, promptly communicate the situation to the listing broker or the occupant.

When entering a property, ensure that unexpected situations, such as pets, are handled appropriately.

Never criticize property in the presence of the occupant.

When showing an occupied home, always ring the doorbell or knock — and announce yourself loudly before entering. Knock and announce yourself loudly before entering any closed rooms.

Present a professional appearance.

If occupants are home during showings, ask their permission before using the bathroom.

Encourage the clients of other brokers to direct questions to their agent or representative.

Communicate clearly; ensure specialized language and real estate terminology is understood.

Be aware of and respect cultural differences. Show courtesy and respect to everyone.

Be aware of — and meet — all deadlines.

Promise only what you can deliver — and keep your promises.

Do not tell people what you think — tell them what you know.

When showing a property, be responsible for your clients/customers and keep the group together.

Make reasonable and timely accommodations to provide access to listed properties.

Make reasonable and timely requests to access listed properties.

Leave the property as you found it (lights, heating, cooling, drapes, etc.). If you think something is amiss (e.g., vandalism) contact the listing broker immediately.

Be considerate of the seller’s property. Do not allow anyone to eat, drink, smoke, dispose of trash, use bathing or sleeping facilities or bring pets. When instructed or appropriate, remove footwear when entering property.

Obtain permission before photographing, videographing, or streaming the interiors or exteriors of properties, or allowing others to do so.

These practices are simple; many are common sense.

These practices are critical to maintaining an environment of respect for all those involved in a real estate transaction.

Follow the “Golden Rule”—Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

Respond promptly to inquiries and requests for information.

Schedule appointments and showings as far in advance as possible.

Communicate promptly if you are delayed or must cancel an appointment or showing. If a prospective buyer decides not to view an occupied home, promptly communicate the situation to the listing broker or the occupant.

When entering a property, ensure that unexpected situations, such as pets, are handled appropriately.

Never criticize property in the presence of the occupant.

When showing an occupied home, always ring the doorbell or knock — and announce yourself loudly before entering. Knock and announce yourself loudly before entering any closed rooms.

Present a professional appearance.

If occupants are home during showings, ask their permission before using the bathroom.

Encourage the clients of other brokers to direct questions to their agent or representative.

Communicate clearly; ensure specialized language and real estate terminology is understood.

Be aware of and respect cultural differences. Show courtesy and respect to everyone.

Be aware of — and meet — all deadlines.

Promise only what you can deliver — and keep your promises.

Do not tell people what you think — tell them what you know.

When showing a property, be responsible for your clients/customers and keep the group together.

Make reasonable and timely accommodations to provide access to listed properties.

Make reasonable and timely requests to access listed properties.

Leave the property as you found it (lights, heating, cooling, drapes, etc.). If you think something is amiss (e.g., vandalism) contact the listing broker immediately.

Be considerate of the seller’s property. Do not allow anyone to eat, drink, smoke, dispose of trash, use bathing or sleeping facilities or bring pets. When instructed or appropriate, remove footwear when entering property.

Obtain permission before photographing, videographing, or streaming the interiors or exteriors of properties, or allowing others to do so.

These practices are simple; many are common sense.

These practices are critical to maintaining an environment of respect for all those involved in a real estate transaction.